Editorial

WE THOUGHT this picture of Dave Barton perfectly illustrated the Editorial theme of "Hero Worship" this issue. The growing number of Teenagers in these pages emphasise the fact that today many a lad of 17 has a physical development that would have been thought impossible twenty years ago. Many youngsters in their early teens idolise the Greats of Muscledom and in their hero-worship endeavour to emulate them. Before we dismiss this as not being very desirable, let us try to imagine where any of our greatest sportsmen, or industrialists or scientists or artists gained

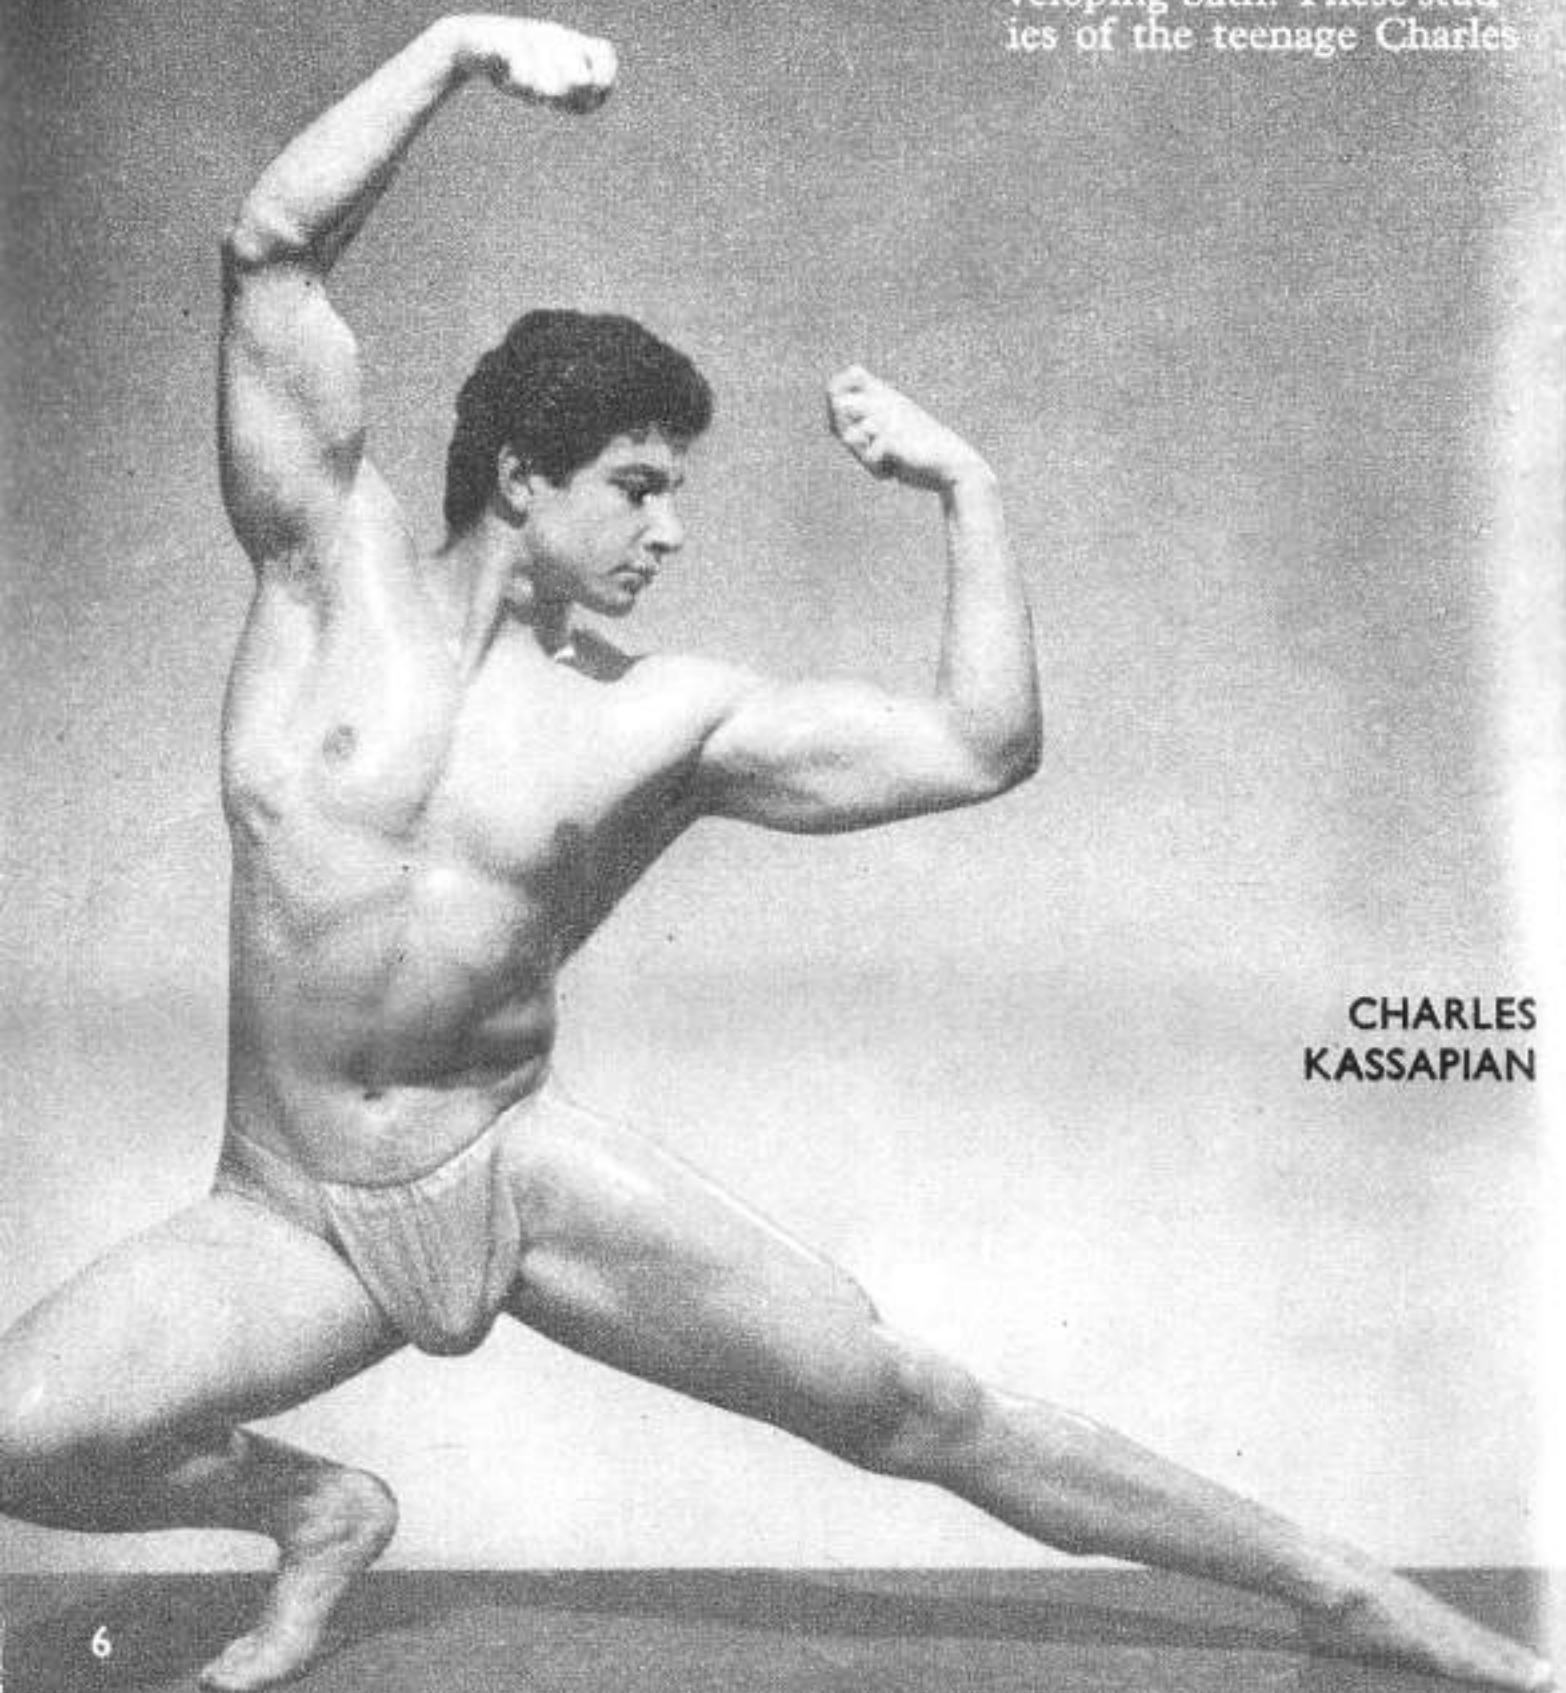
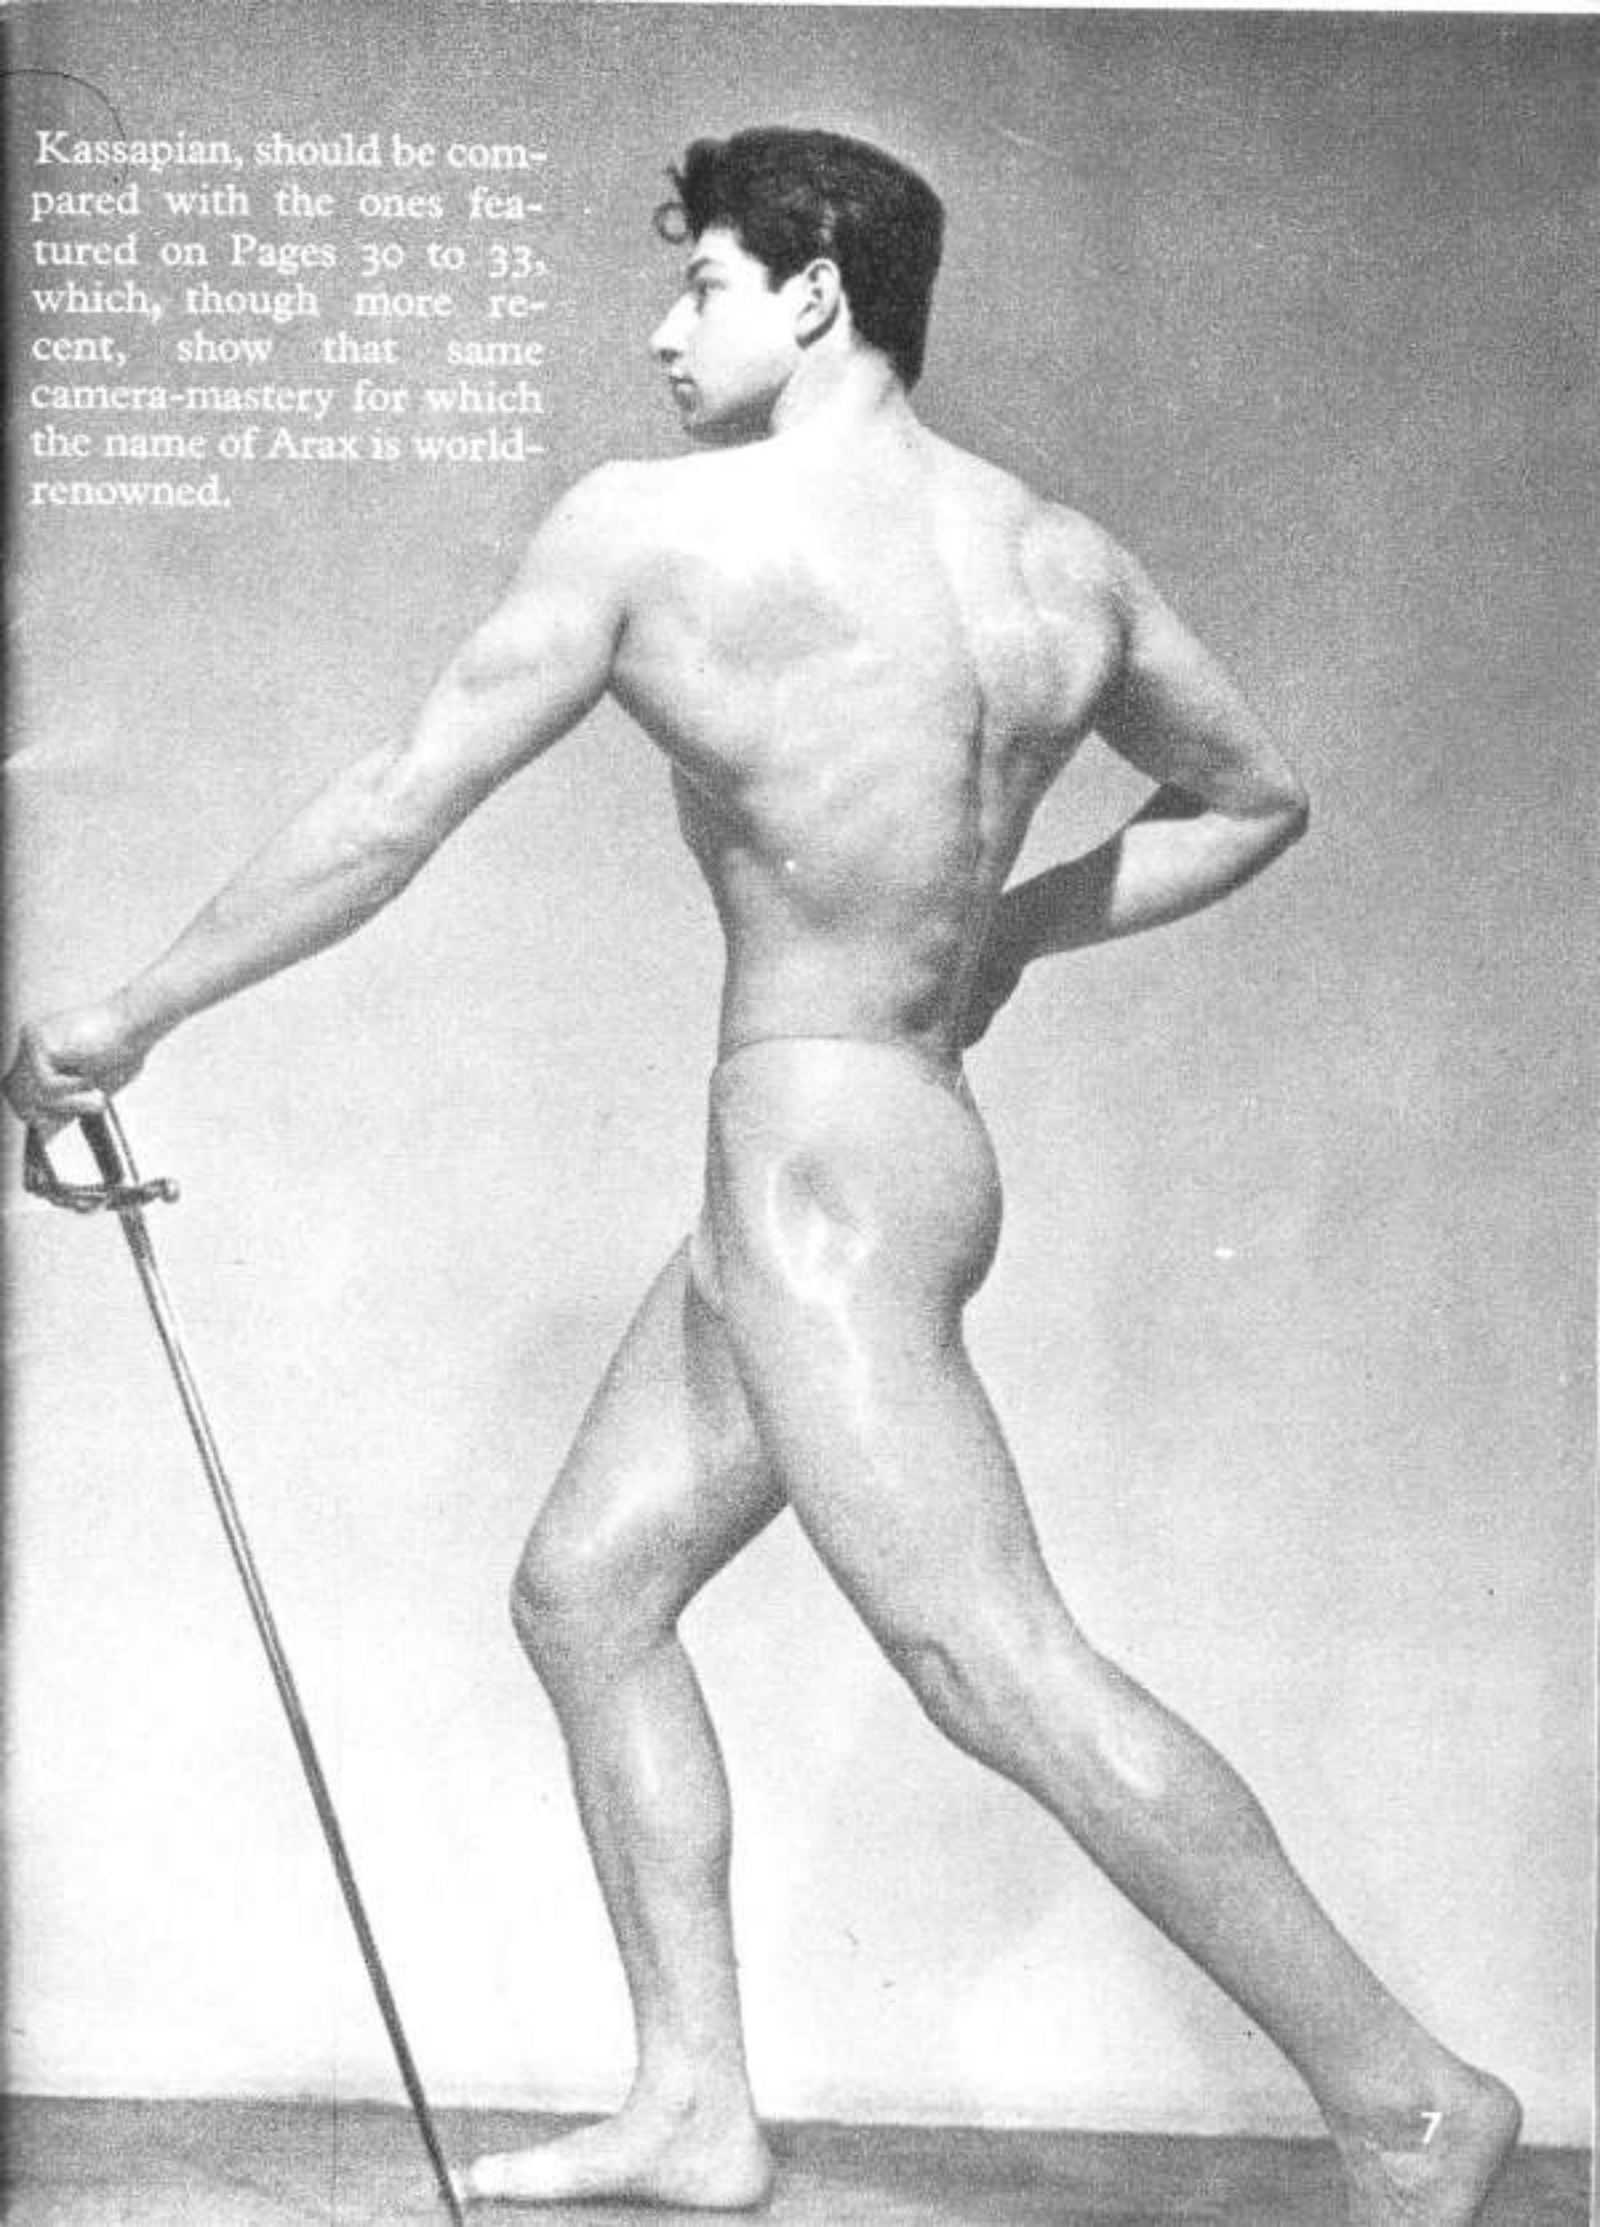
THE MIGHTY ARAX

About the greatest physique photographer's work there is a certain timeless quality that renders a photograph taken five years ago as "up-to-date" as one fresh from the developing bath. These studies of the teenage Charles



CHARLES KASSAPIAN



Kassapian, should be compared with the ones featured on Pages 30 to 33, which, though more recent, show that same camera-mastery for which the name of Arax is world-renowned.

their inspiration from, and invariably we will find it was from just such a powerful devotion to follow in the footsteps of a revered Master. The Great Men of today were nearly always motivated by a tremendous admiration for their predecessors. It is the mediocre person who can find no-one worthy of his admiration who should worry us.

MARBLE & BRONZE

J-Rome has long contemplated the intriguing idea of searching out and compiling a list of the all-too-rare examples of marble and bronze male statues here in the United States. Such statuary holds tremendous interest for great numbers of people, and we feel that a guide to help in discovering just where these art works can be found in America should be most helpful.

Organizing and compiling such material singlehanded would, of course, be prohibitive both in time and in money. However, with YOUR help and that of your friends, J-Rome has formulated a plan which we feel can mutually benefit all who find this attractive as a joint venture.

Let each of us cover the area in which he lives, keeping a weather-eye open for male statues, wherever they may be found. Those on this page were discovered in one area, with little or no effort. Keep your camera with you and take a record shot when you make such a discovery, together with notes on the size of statue, sculptor, location, material of which it is carved, etc. Check your parks, museums, universities, cemeteries, monuments, public buildings, athletic stadiums, public gardens, etc. These and all similar places are likely spots in which to search.

Please send your pictures and negatives, plus descriptive notes, to J-Rome, Box 2303, Hollywood 28, California. Once complete, we shall then undertake to compile and organize the results into an attractive, informative catalogue. Those participating in this group venture will be given special rates when the catalogue is released.

Pictures on these pages were discovered and photographed in Los Angeles and neighbouring areas. The copy of Michaelangelo's DAVID, and THE WRESTLERS, may both be seen at the Court of David, Forest Lawn Cemetery, Glendale, Calif.

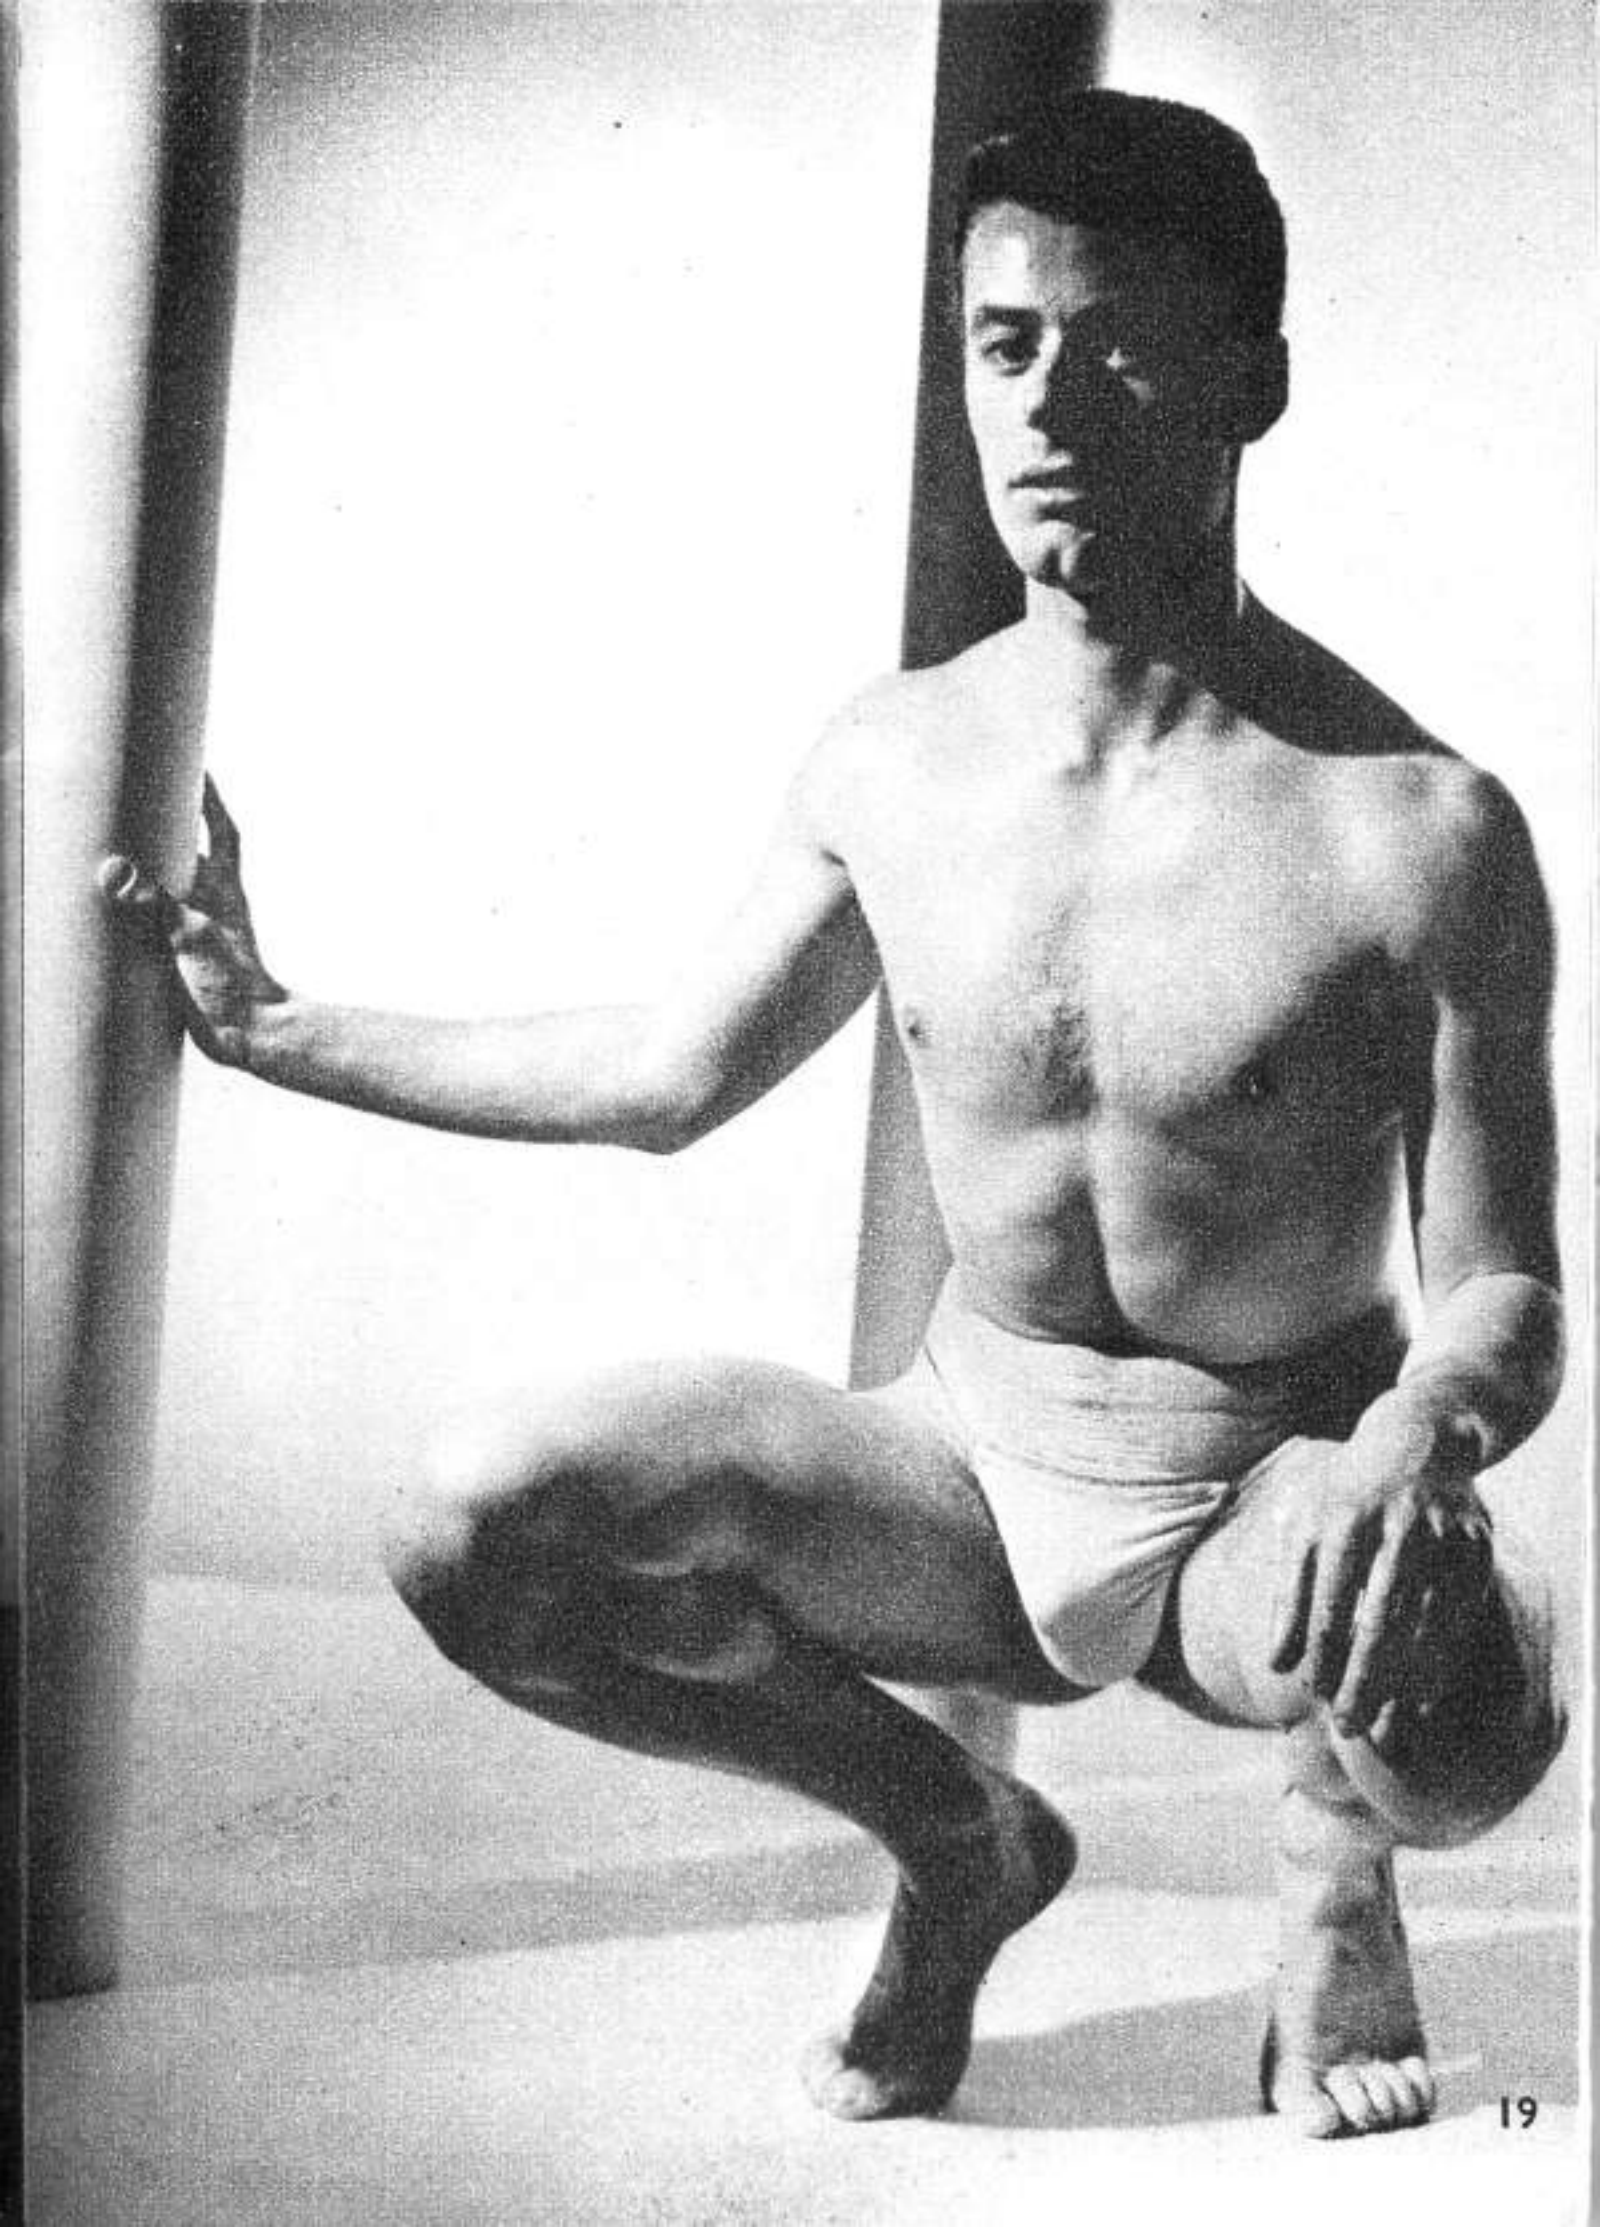
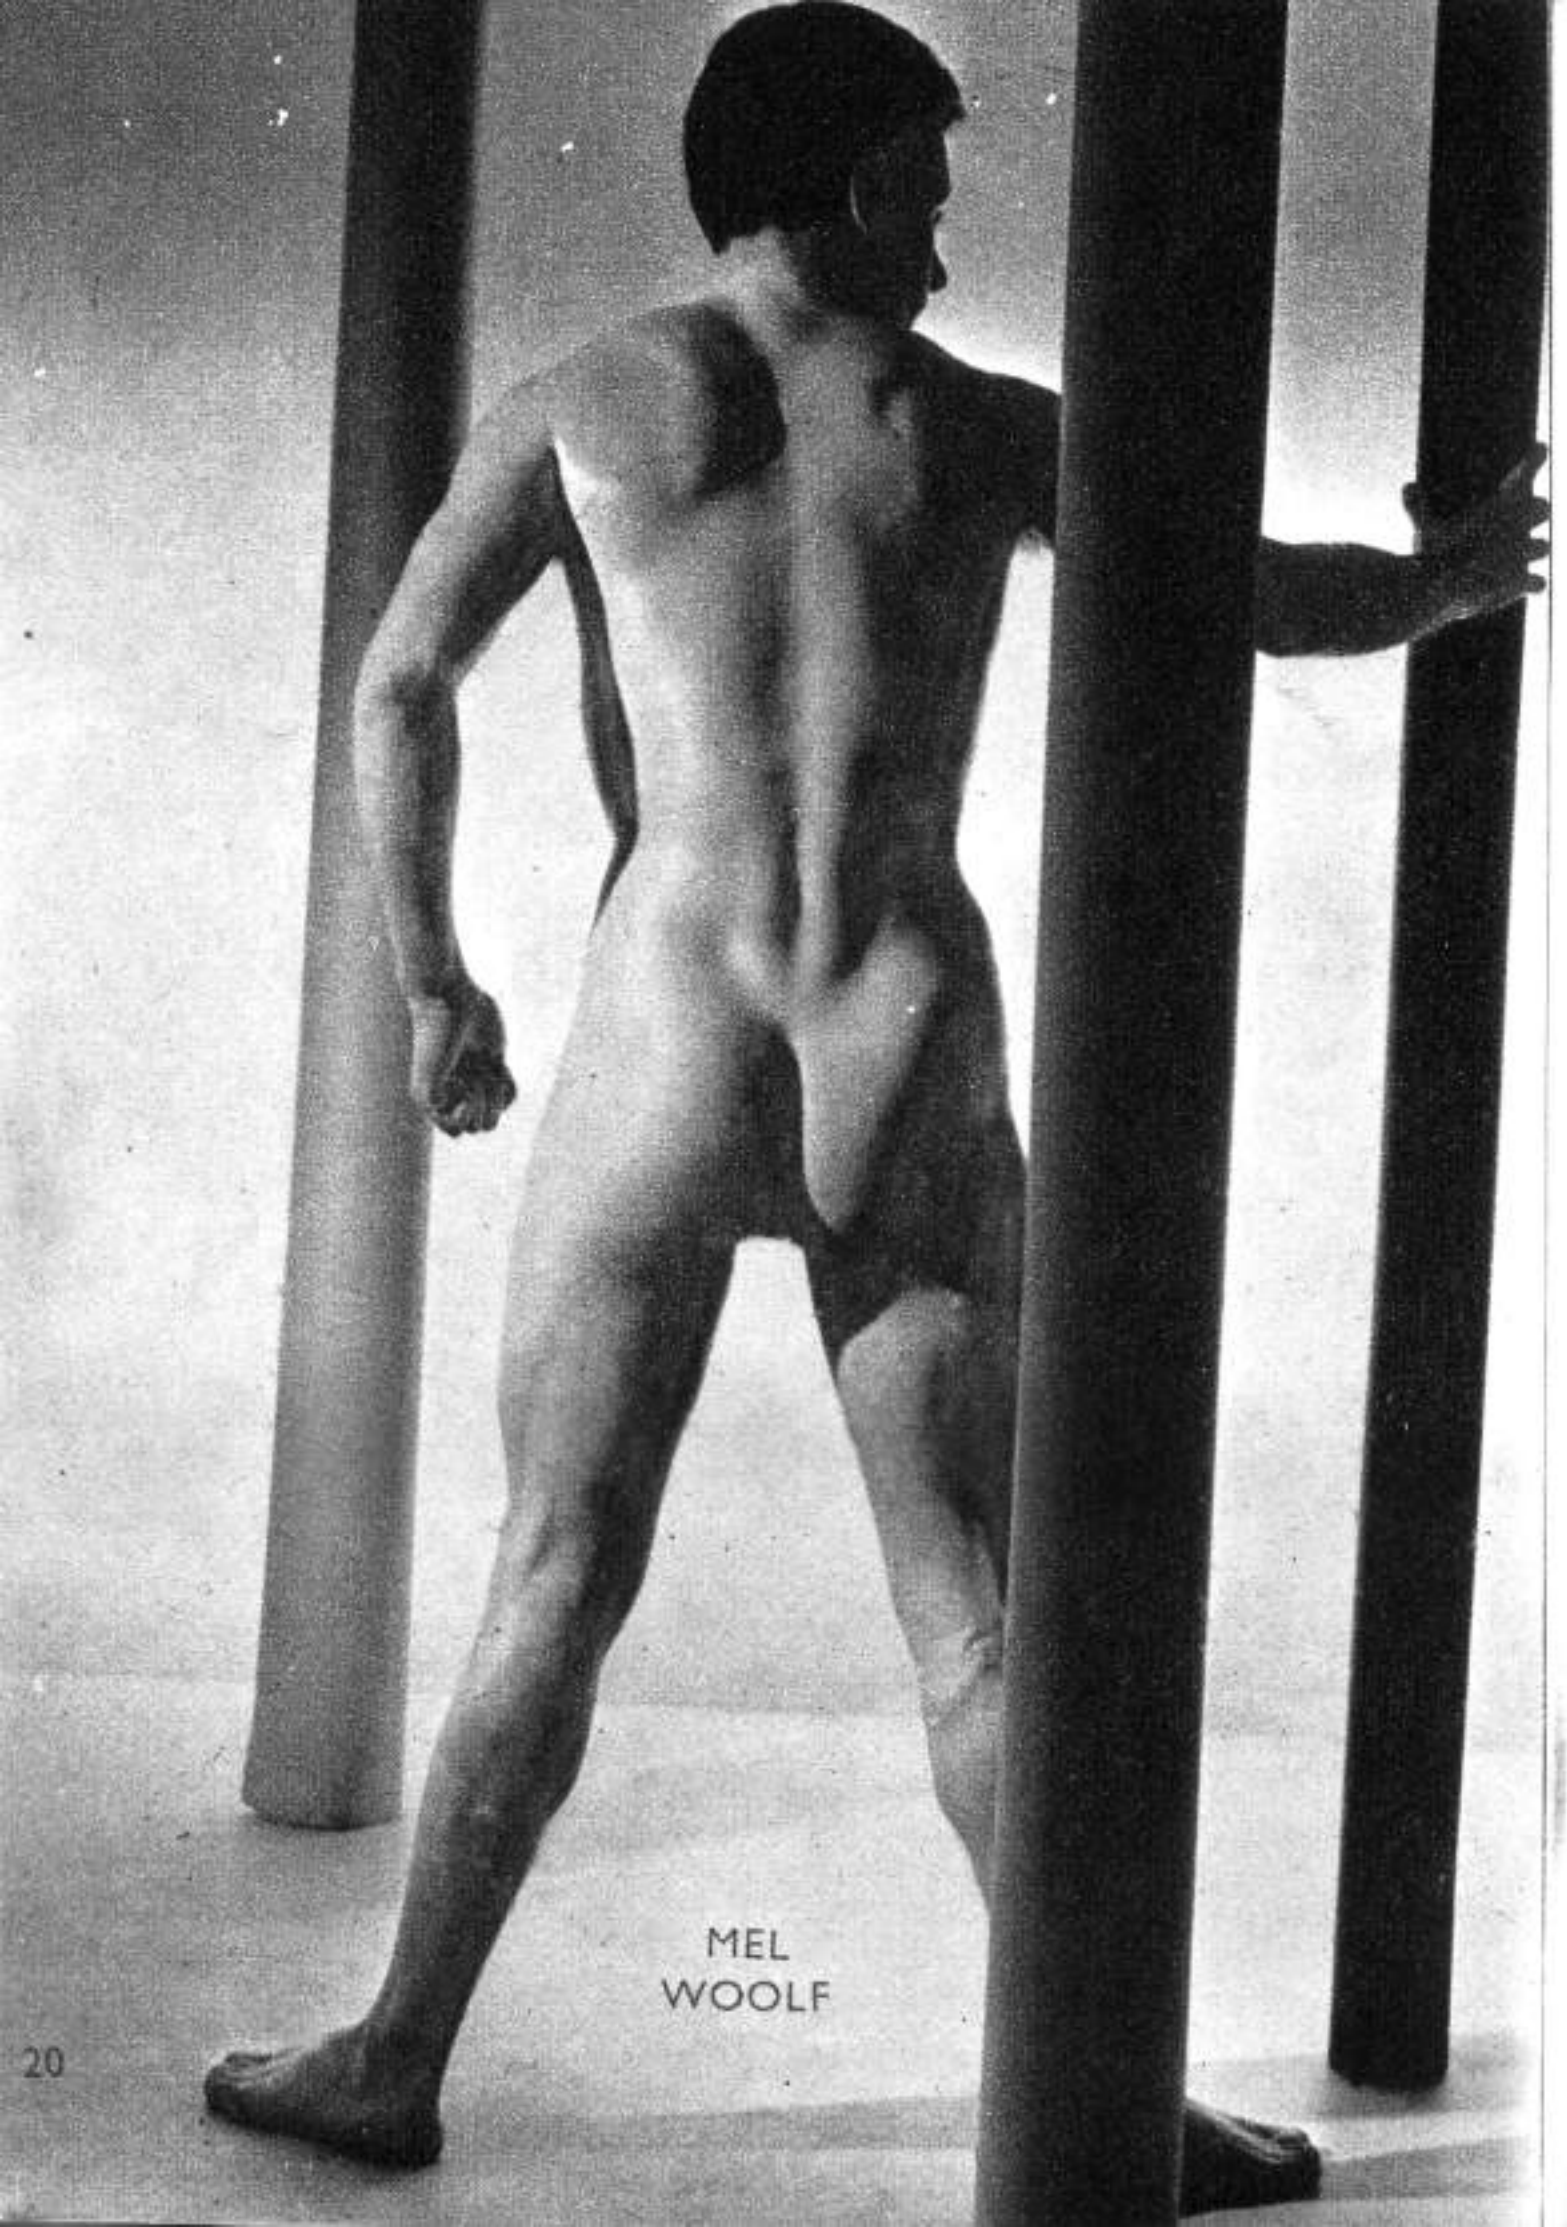
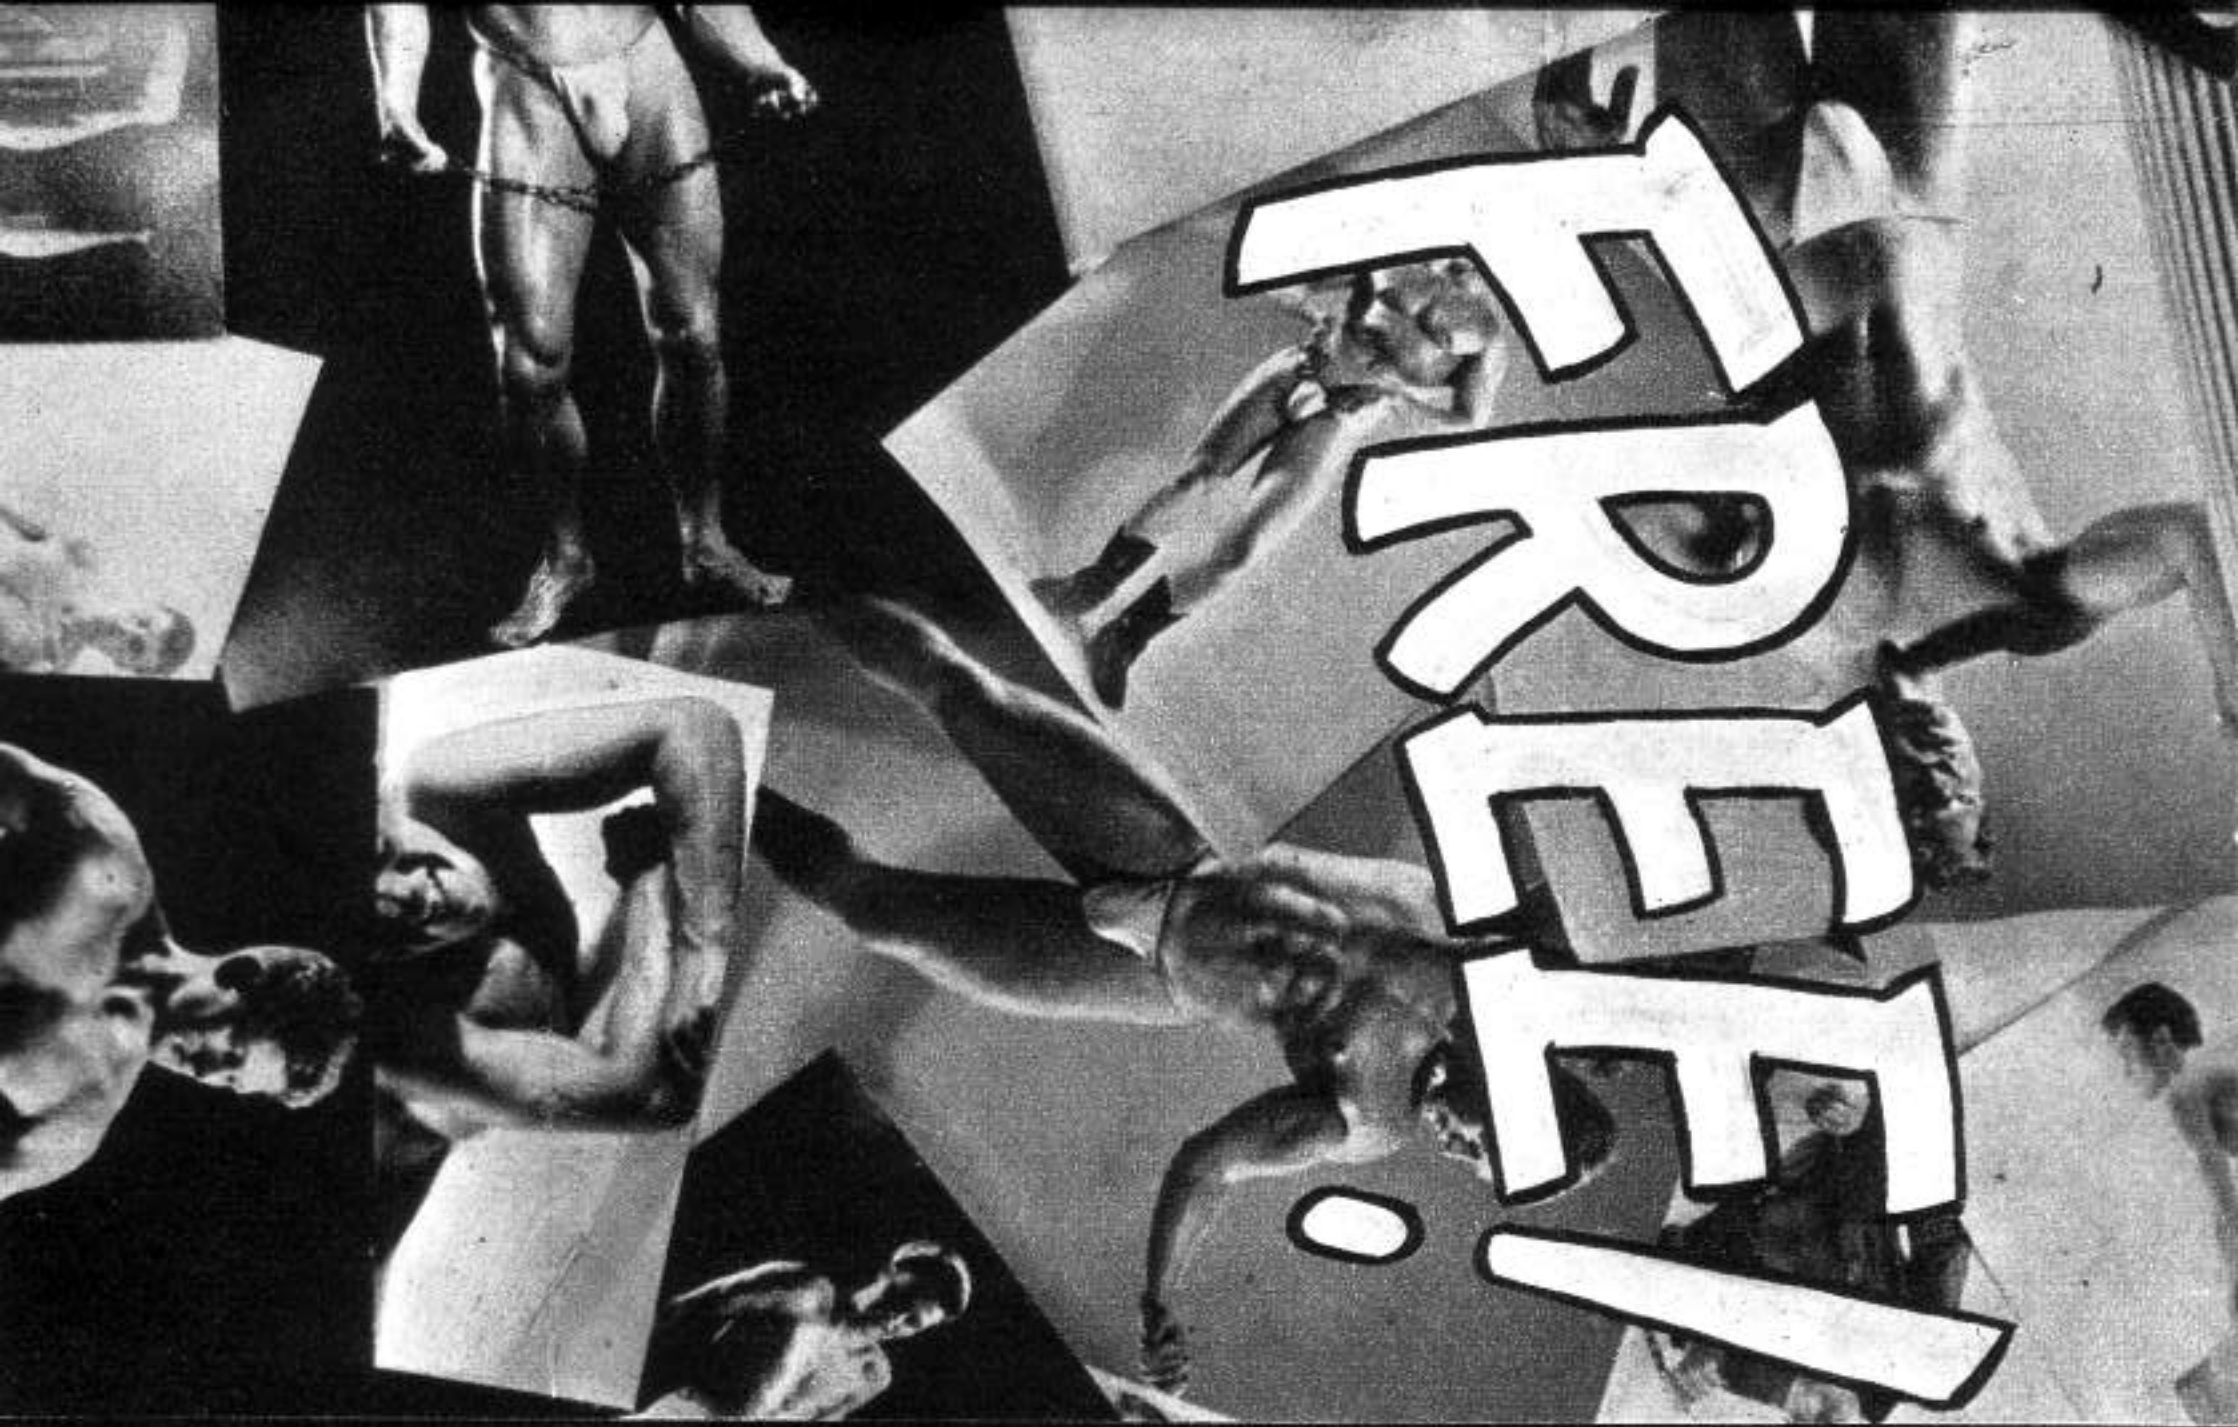
SCOTT

The SCOTT Studios have rapidly established themselves as one of the most skilfully original in England. These pictures show a consummate ability to compose interesting studies using a model of average physique, and "props" that help to enliven the finished results. SCOTT is now issuing a fully comprehensive illustrated booklet on all his models, free as advertised on Page 21.





MEL
WOOLF



For each of our models featured in this magazine there is at least one catalog. Send 5/- or $1 for each catalog and you will receive FREE our NEW fully illustrated booklet containing descriptions of ALL our models and catalogs.

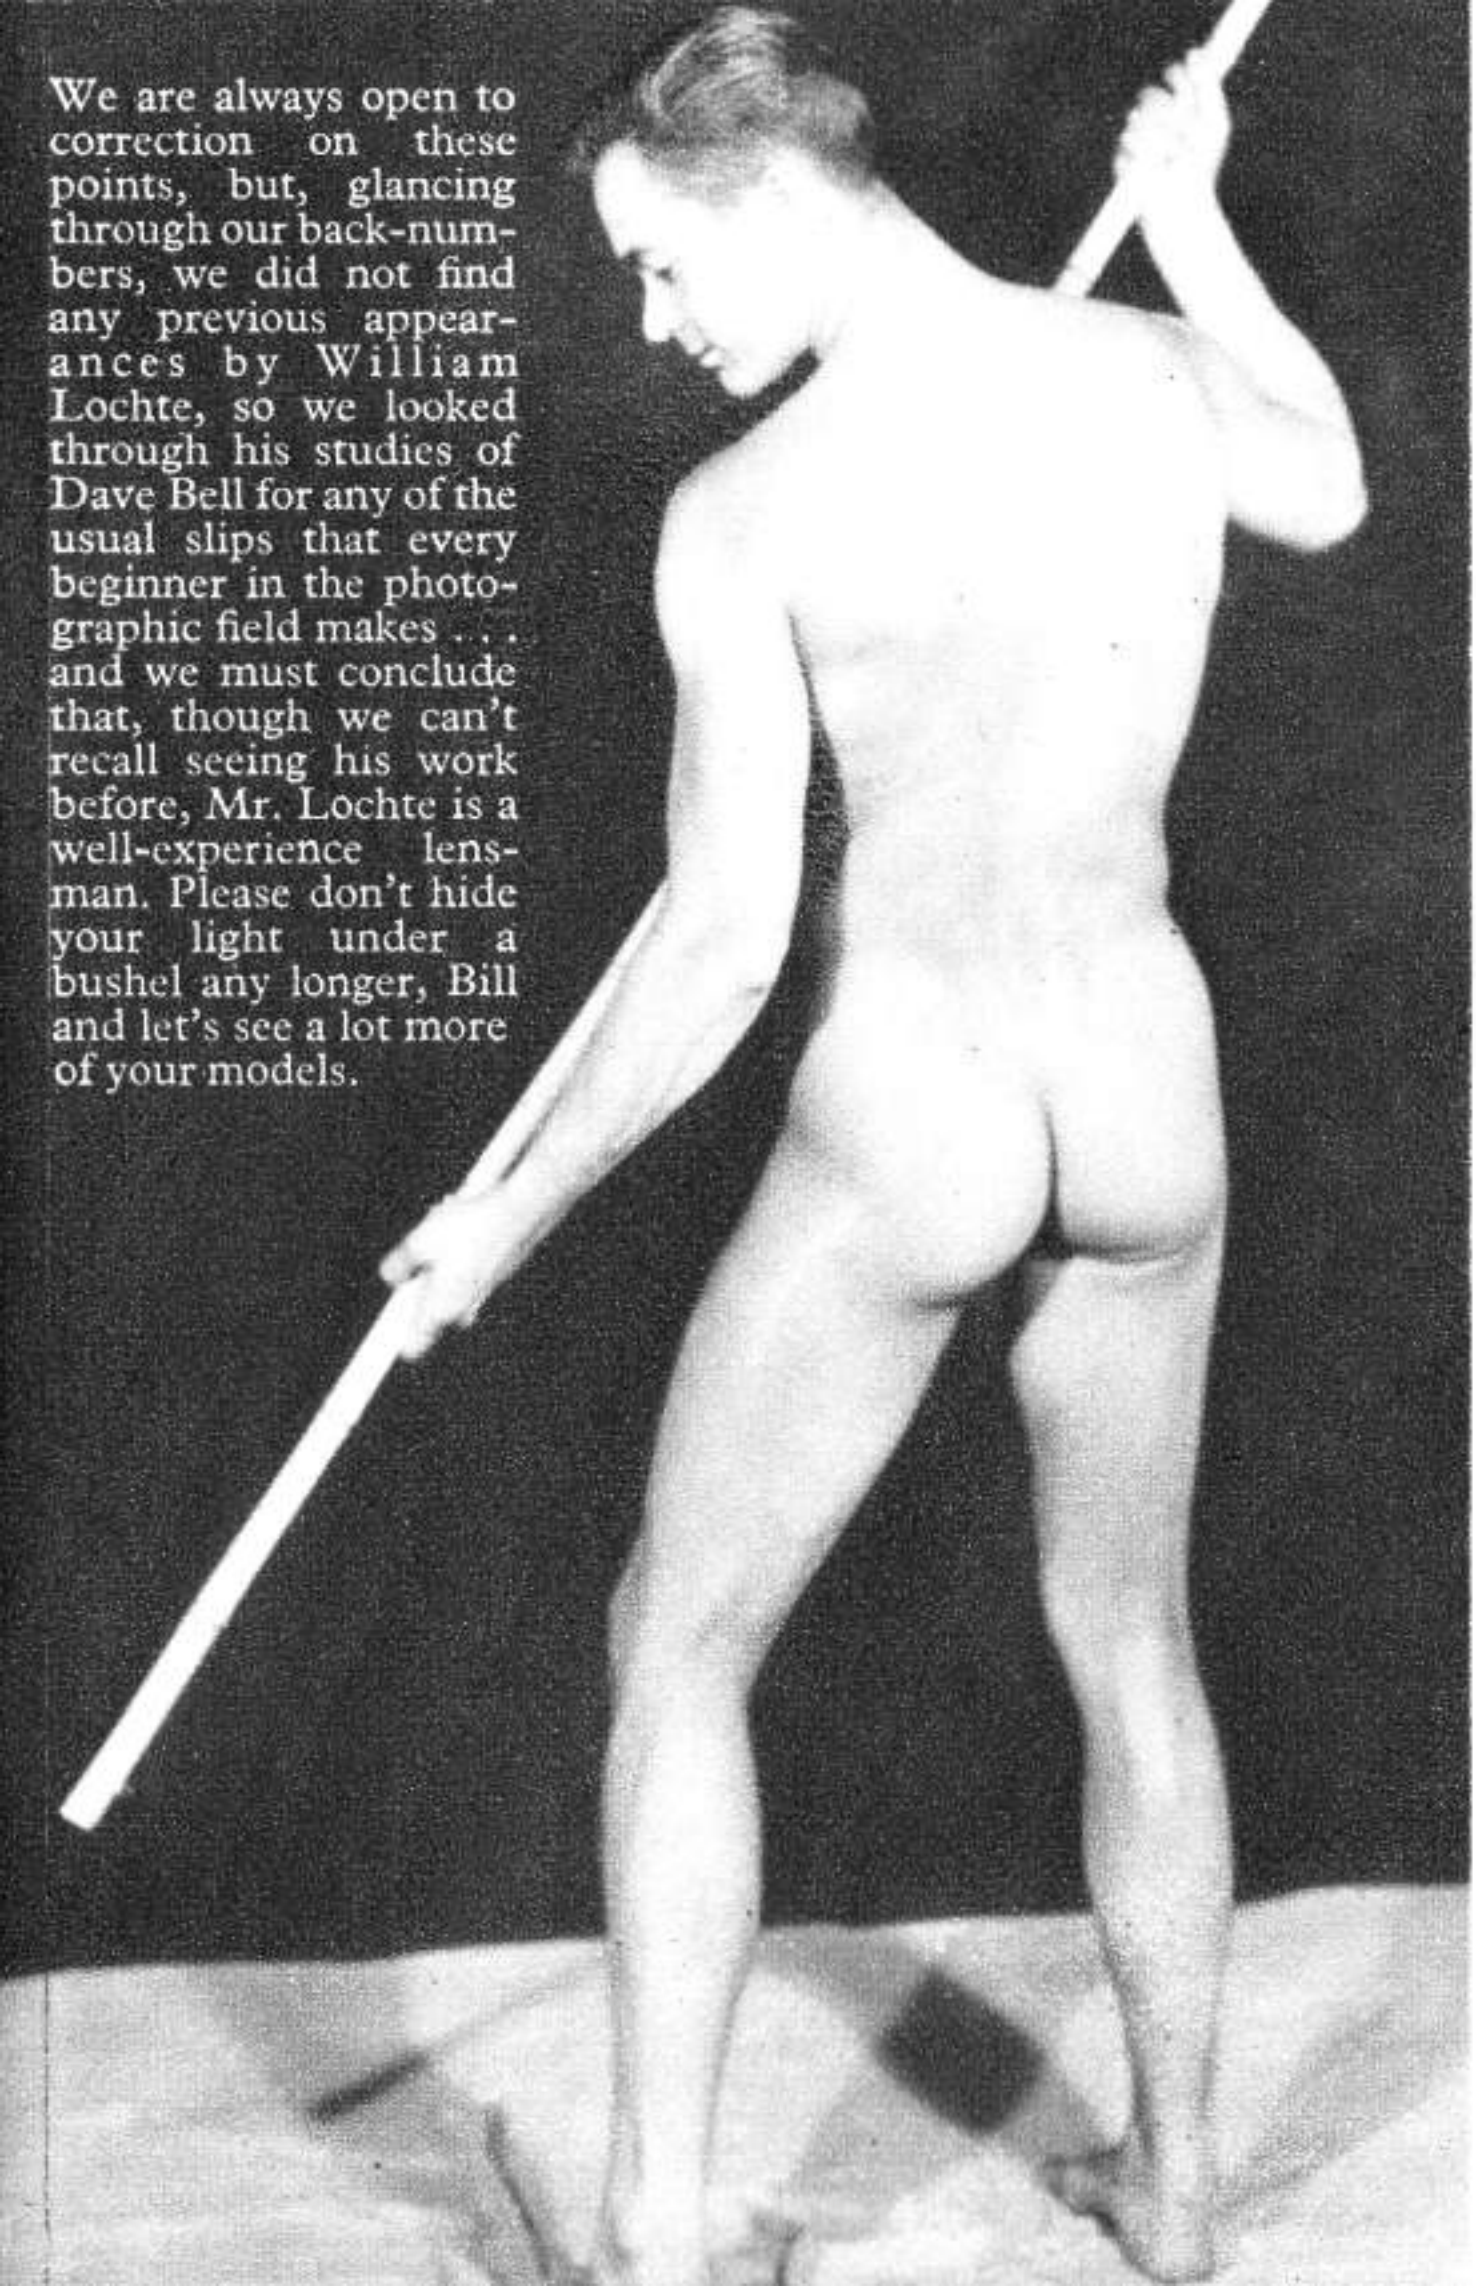
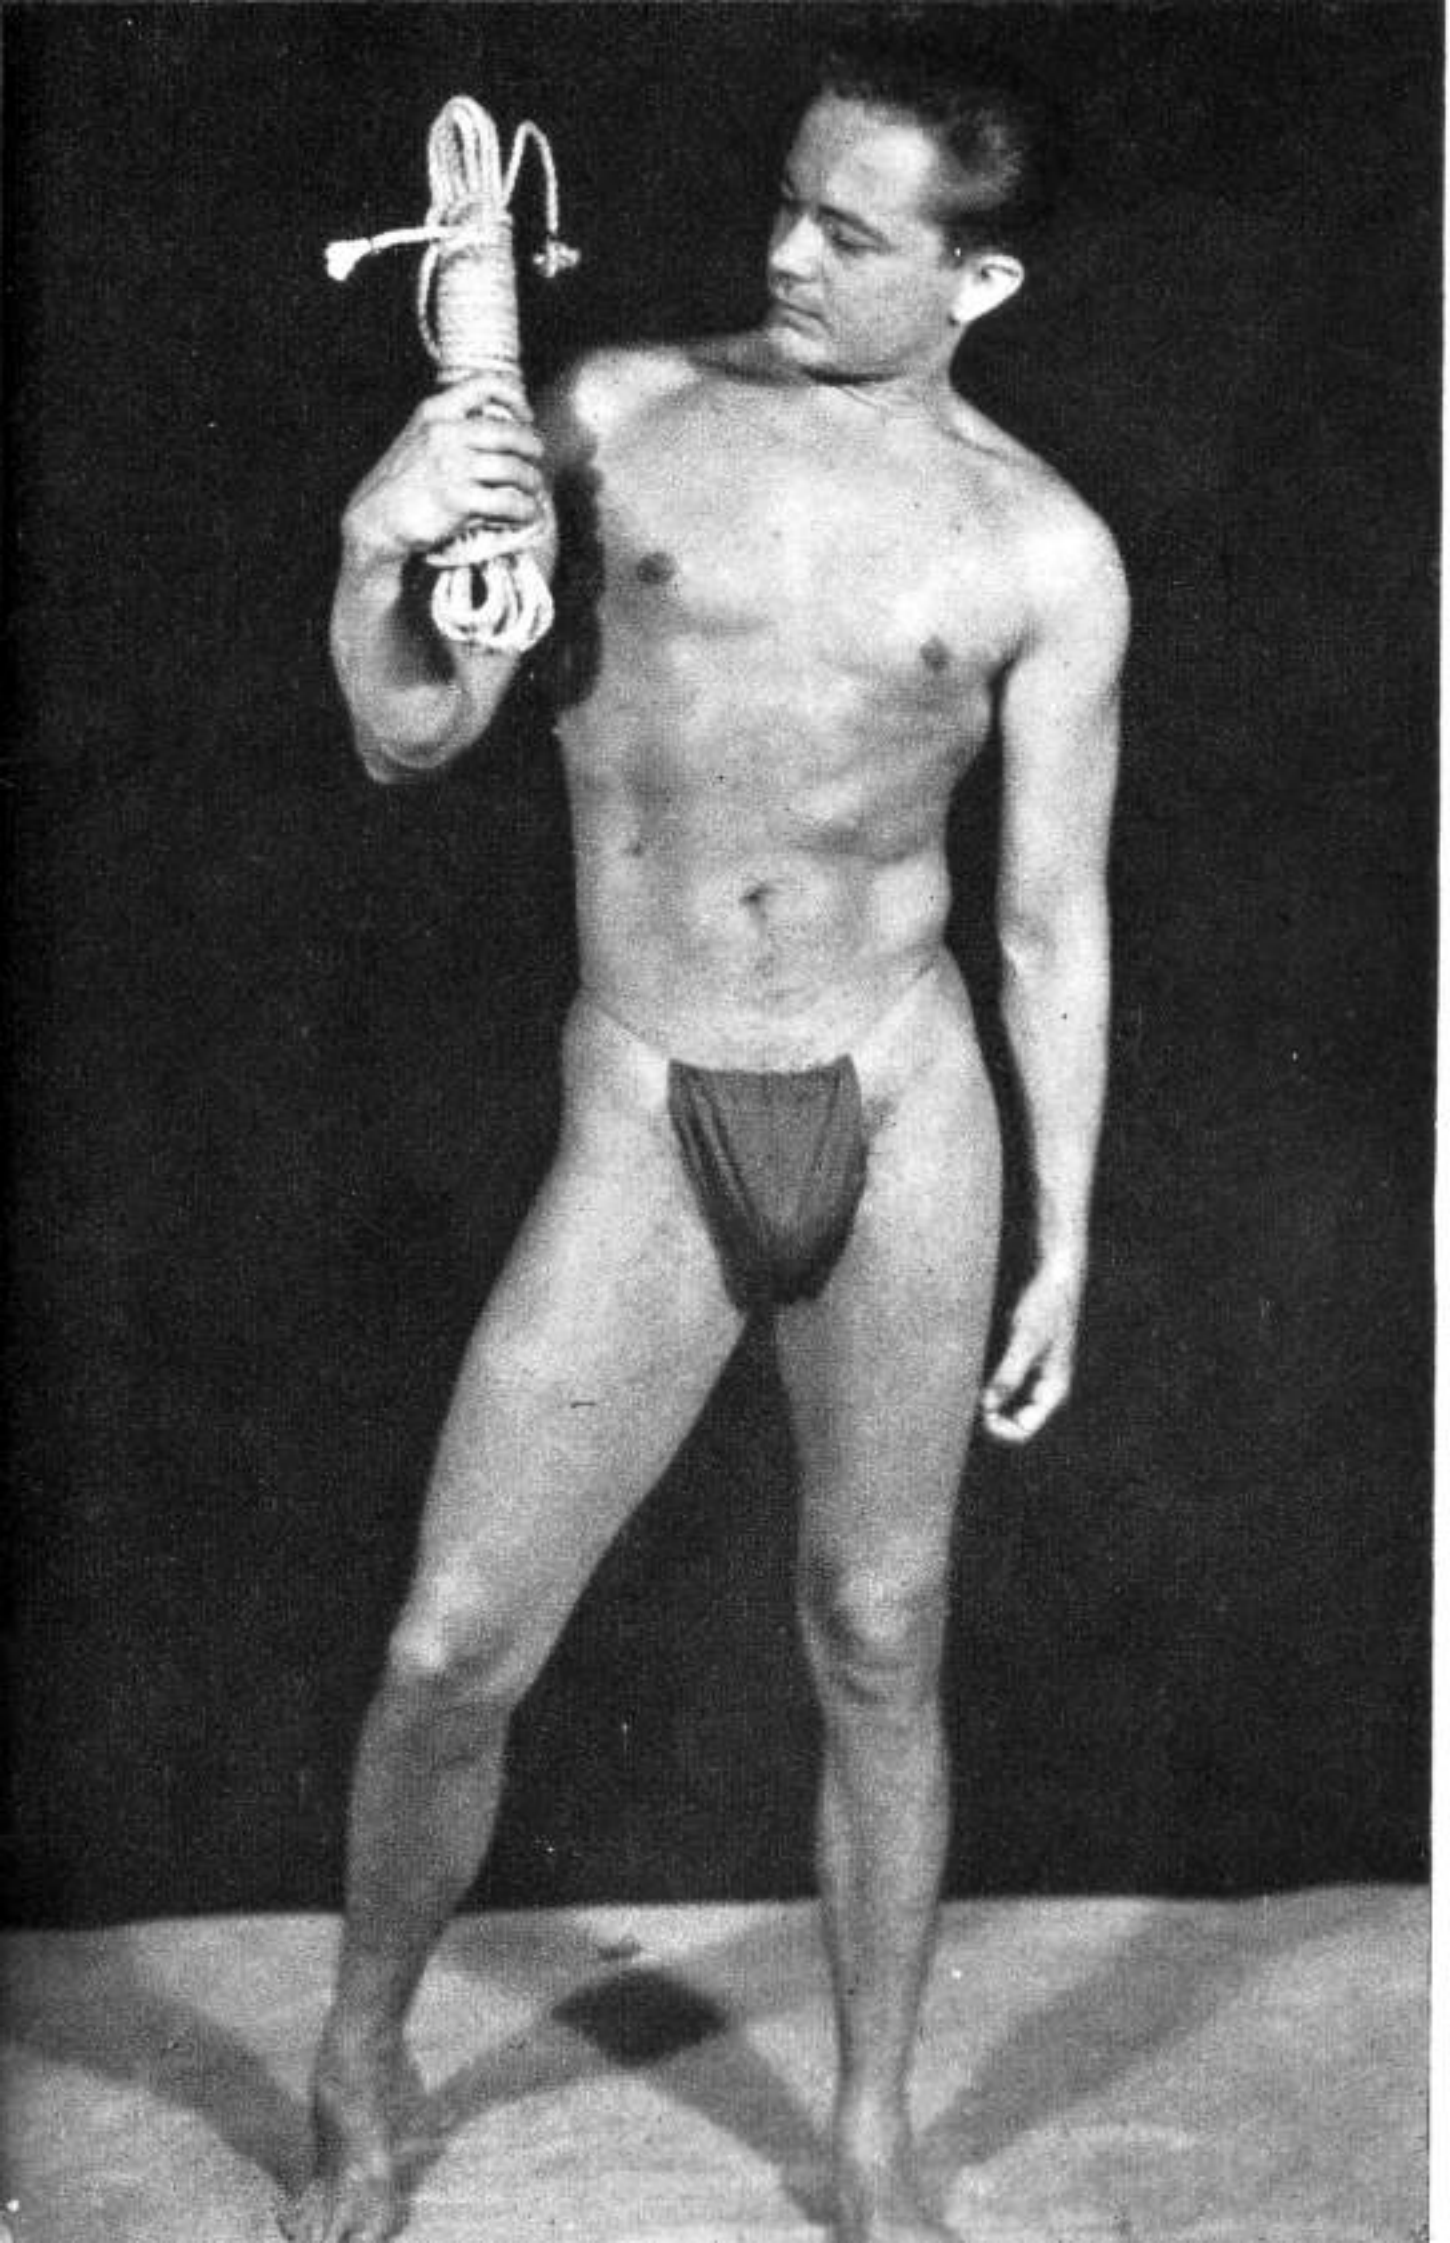
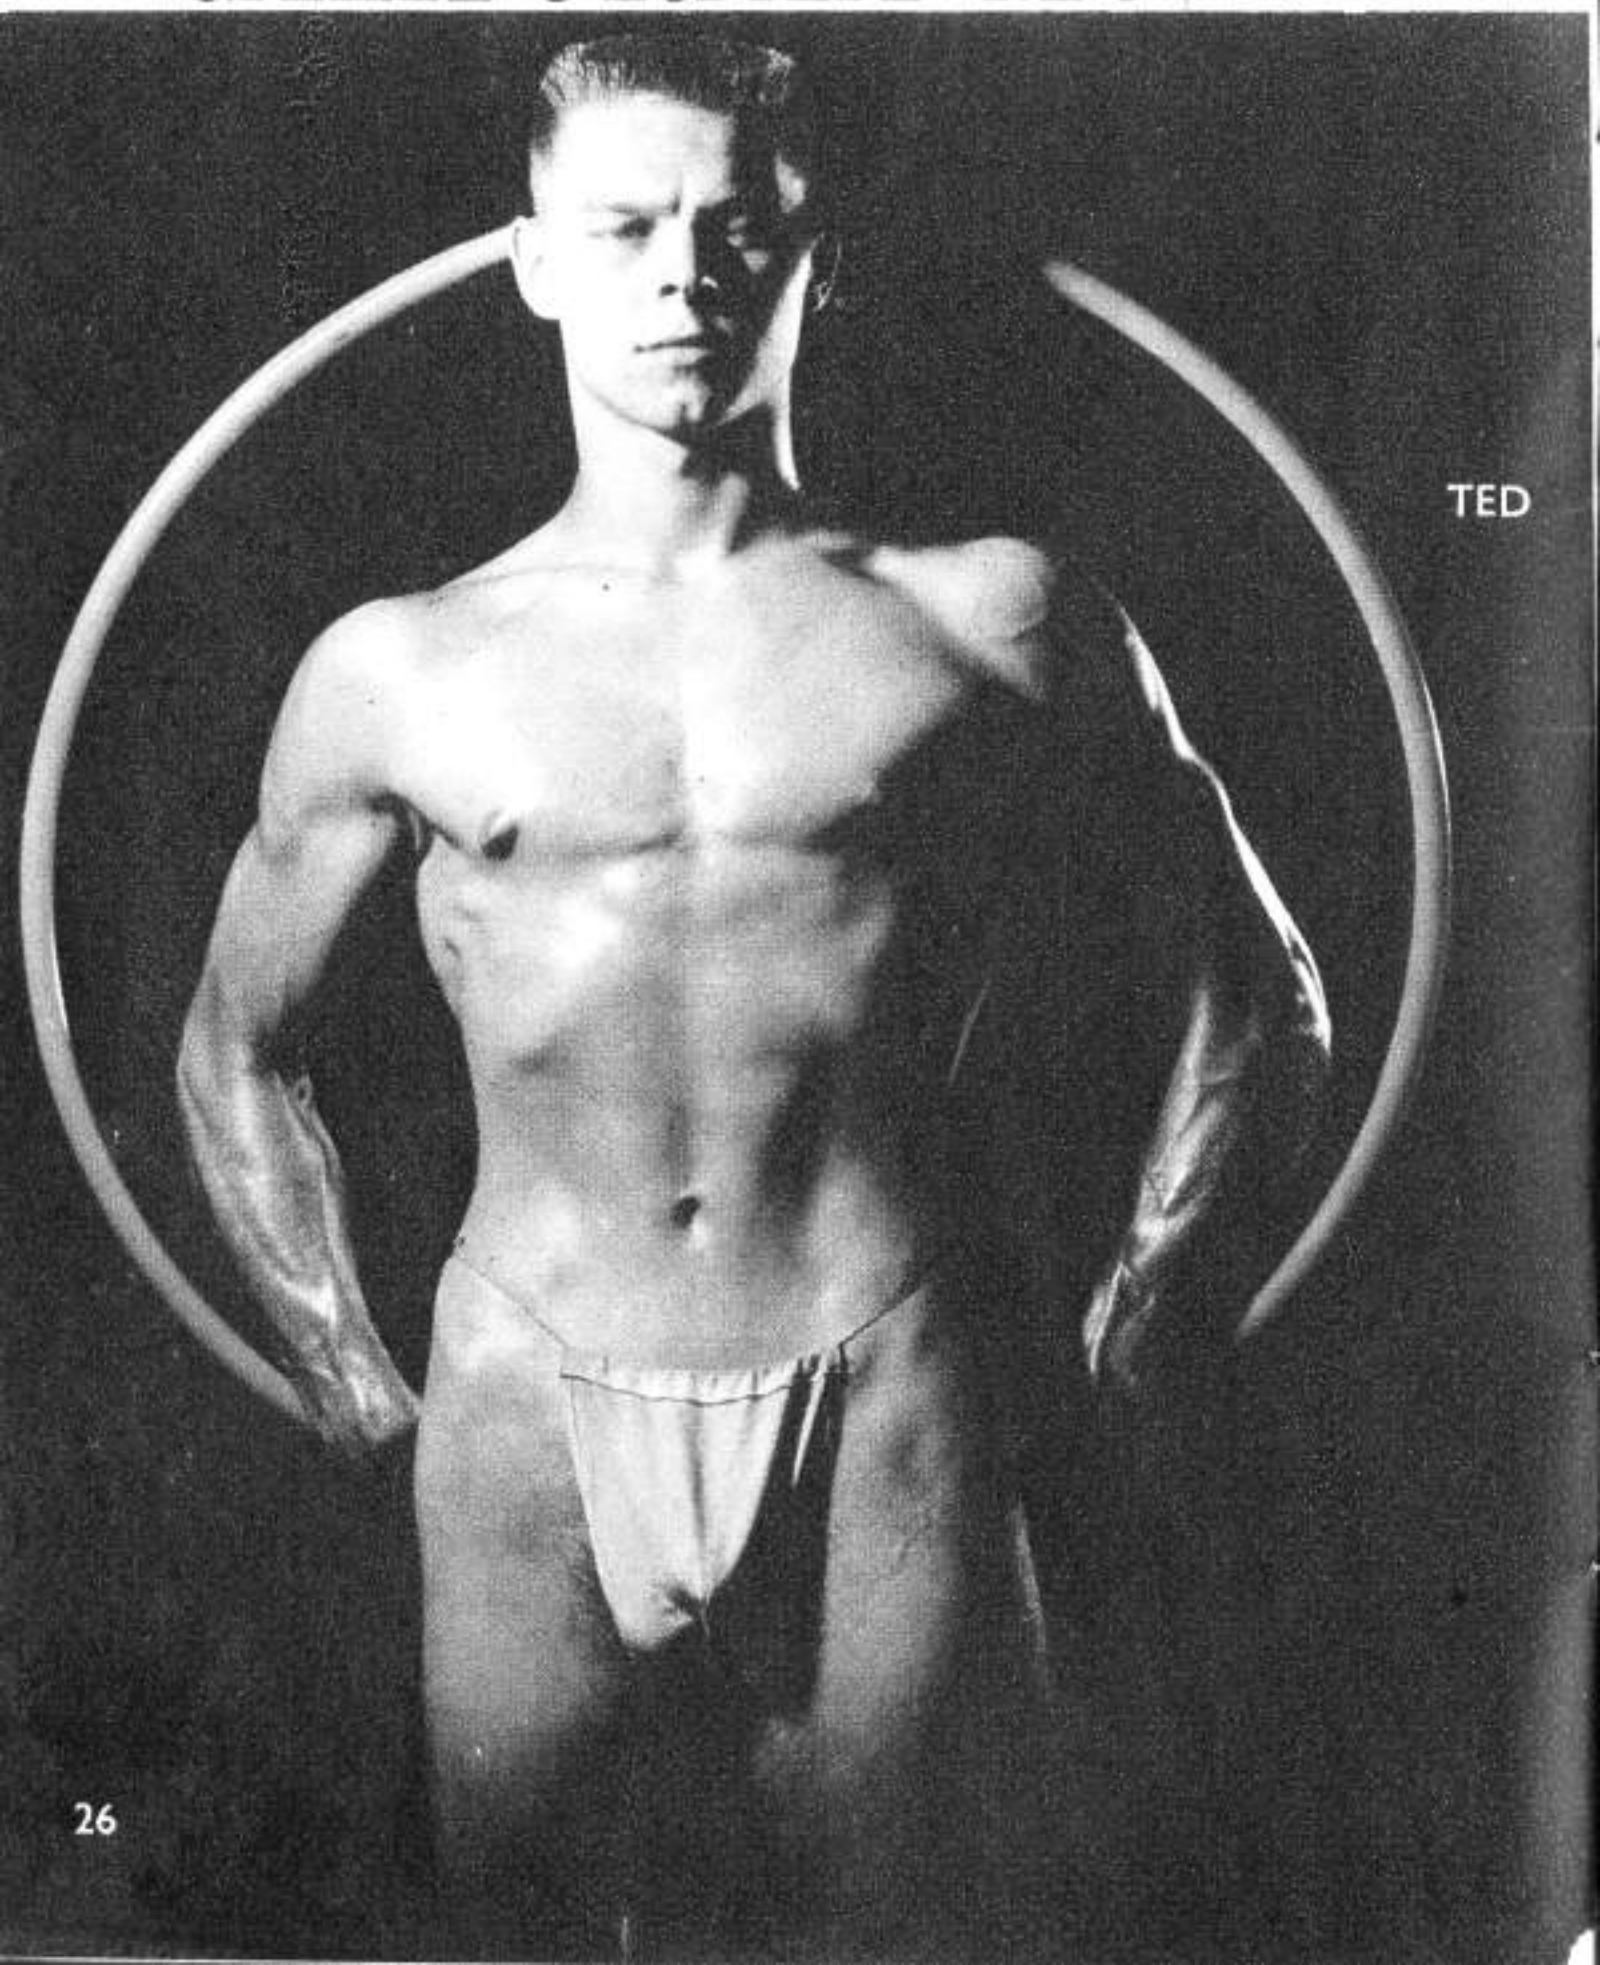
BELL
DAVE BELL
by W. P. Lochte

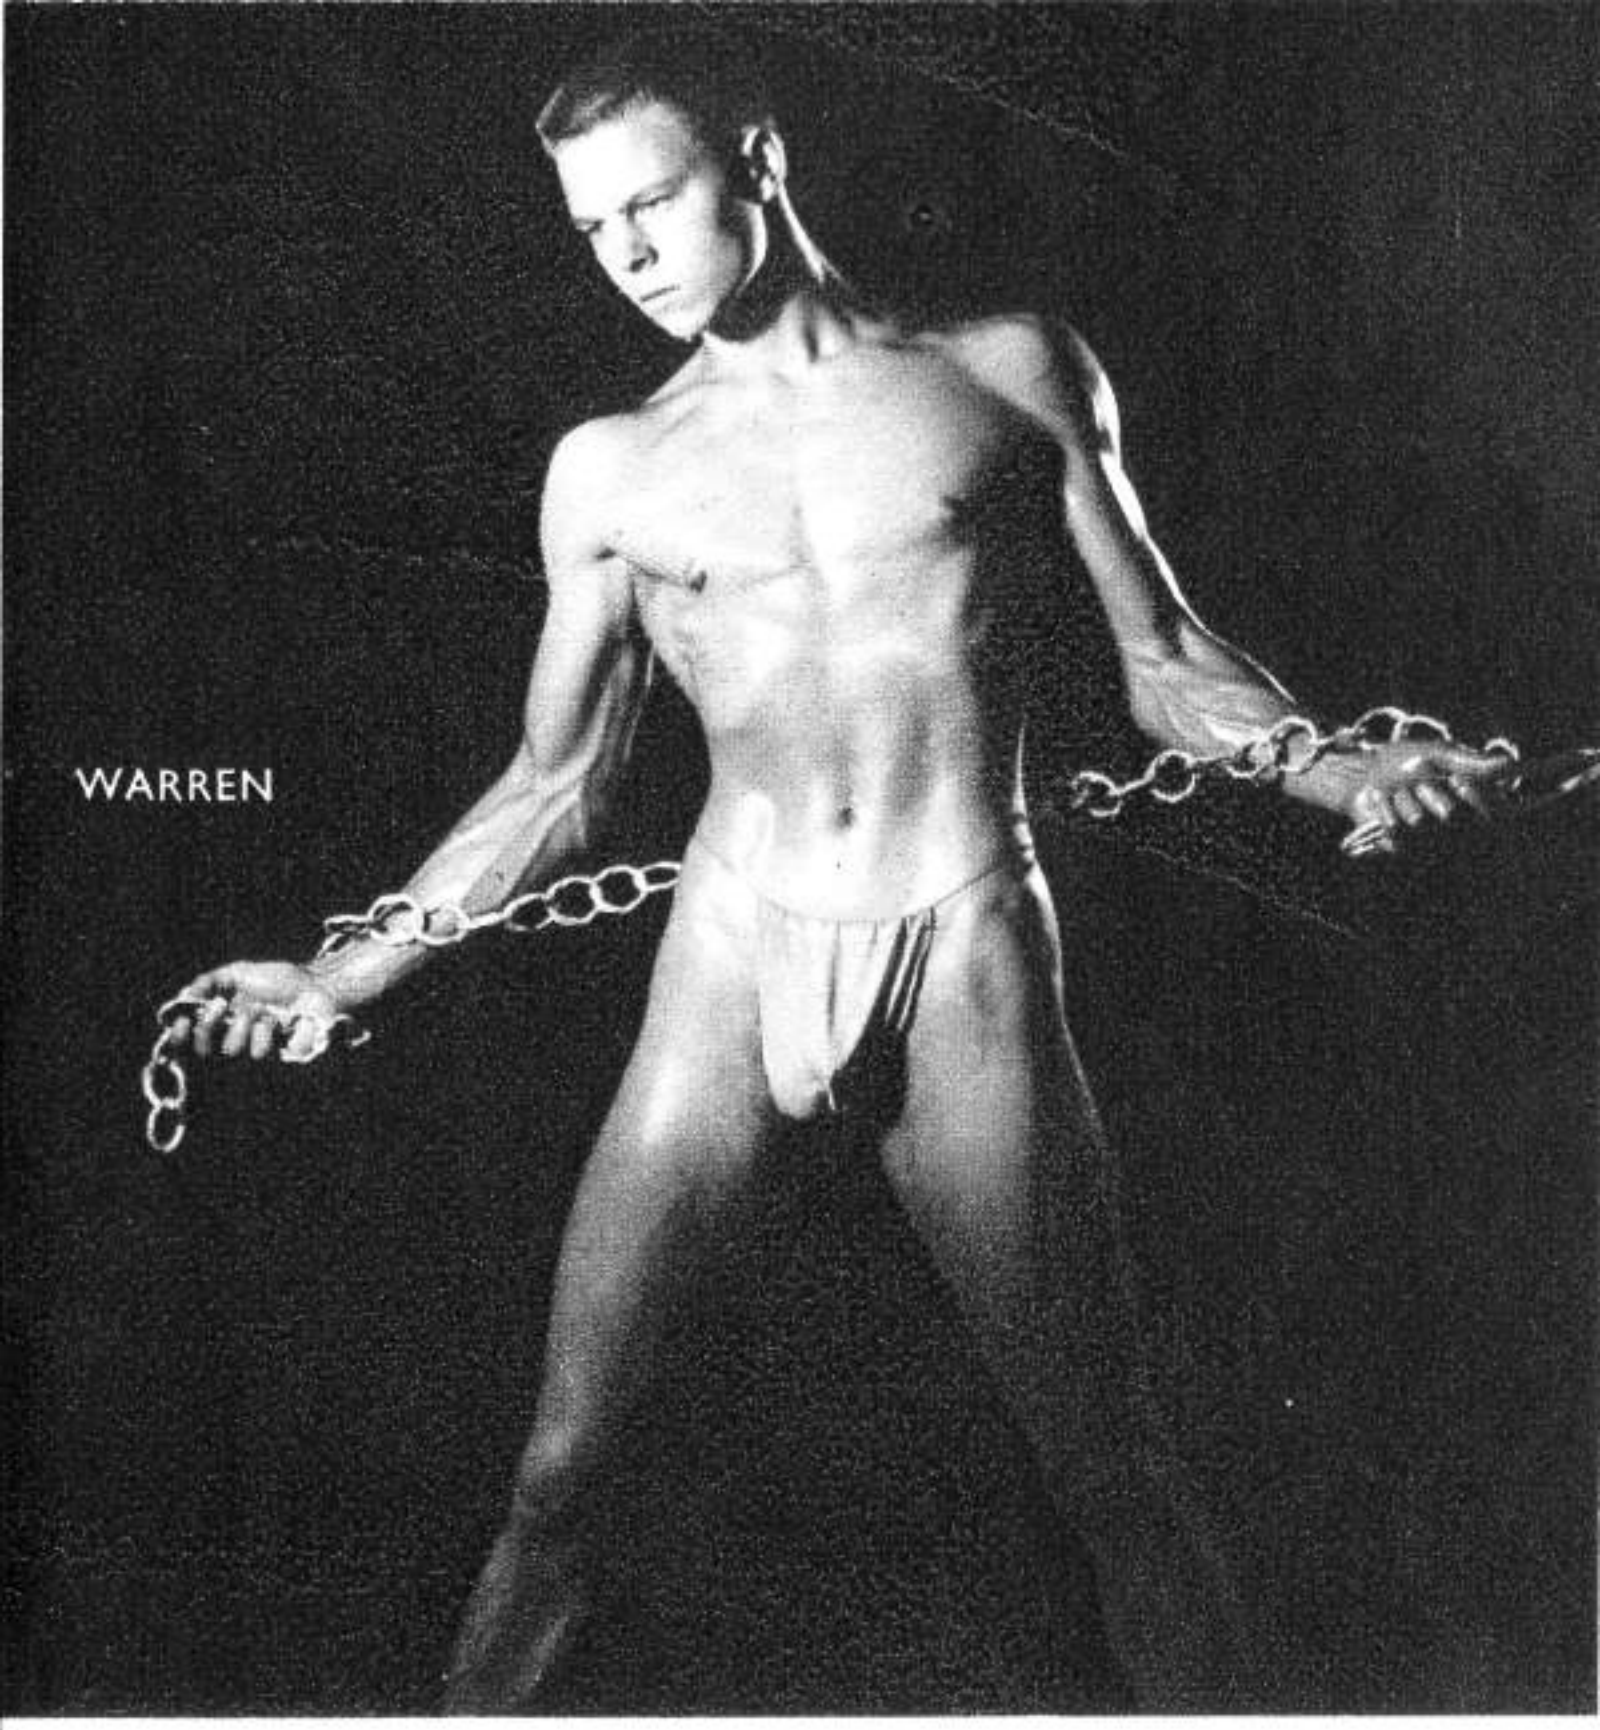


We are always open to correction on these points, but, glancing through our back-numbers, we did not find any previous appearances by William Lochte, so we looked through his studies of Dave Bell for any of the usual slips that every beginner in the photographic field makes . . . and we must conclude that, though we can't recall seeing his work before, Mr. Lochte is a well-experience lensman. Please don't hide your light under a bushel any longer, Bill and let's see a lot more of your models.



CALIFORNIA MODELS





California Models have come up with another good-looking all-American boy in Ted Warren, proving again that you don't really have to be huge and bulky to be a fine healthy specimen of manhood . . . and very photogenic too. Although these shots are in the studio, California Models have another set of Ted taken out-doors, and a color-set also.

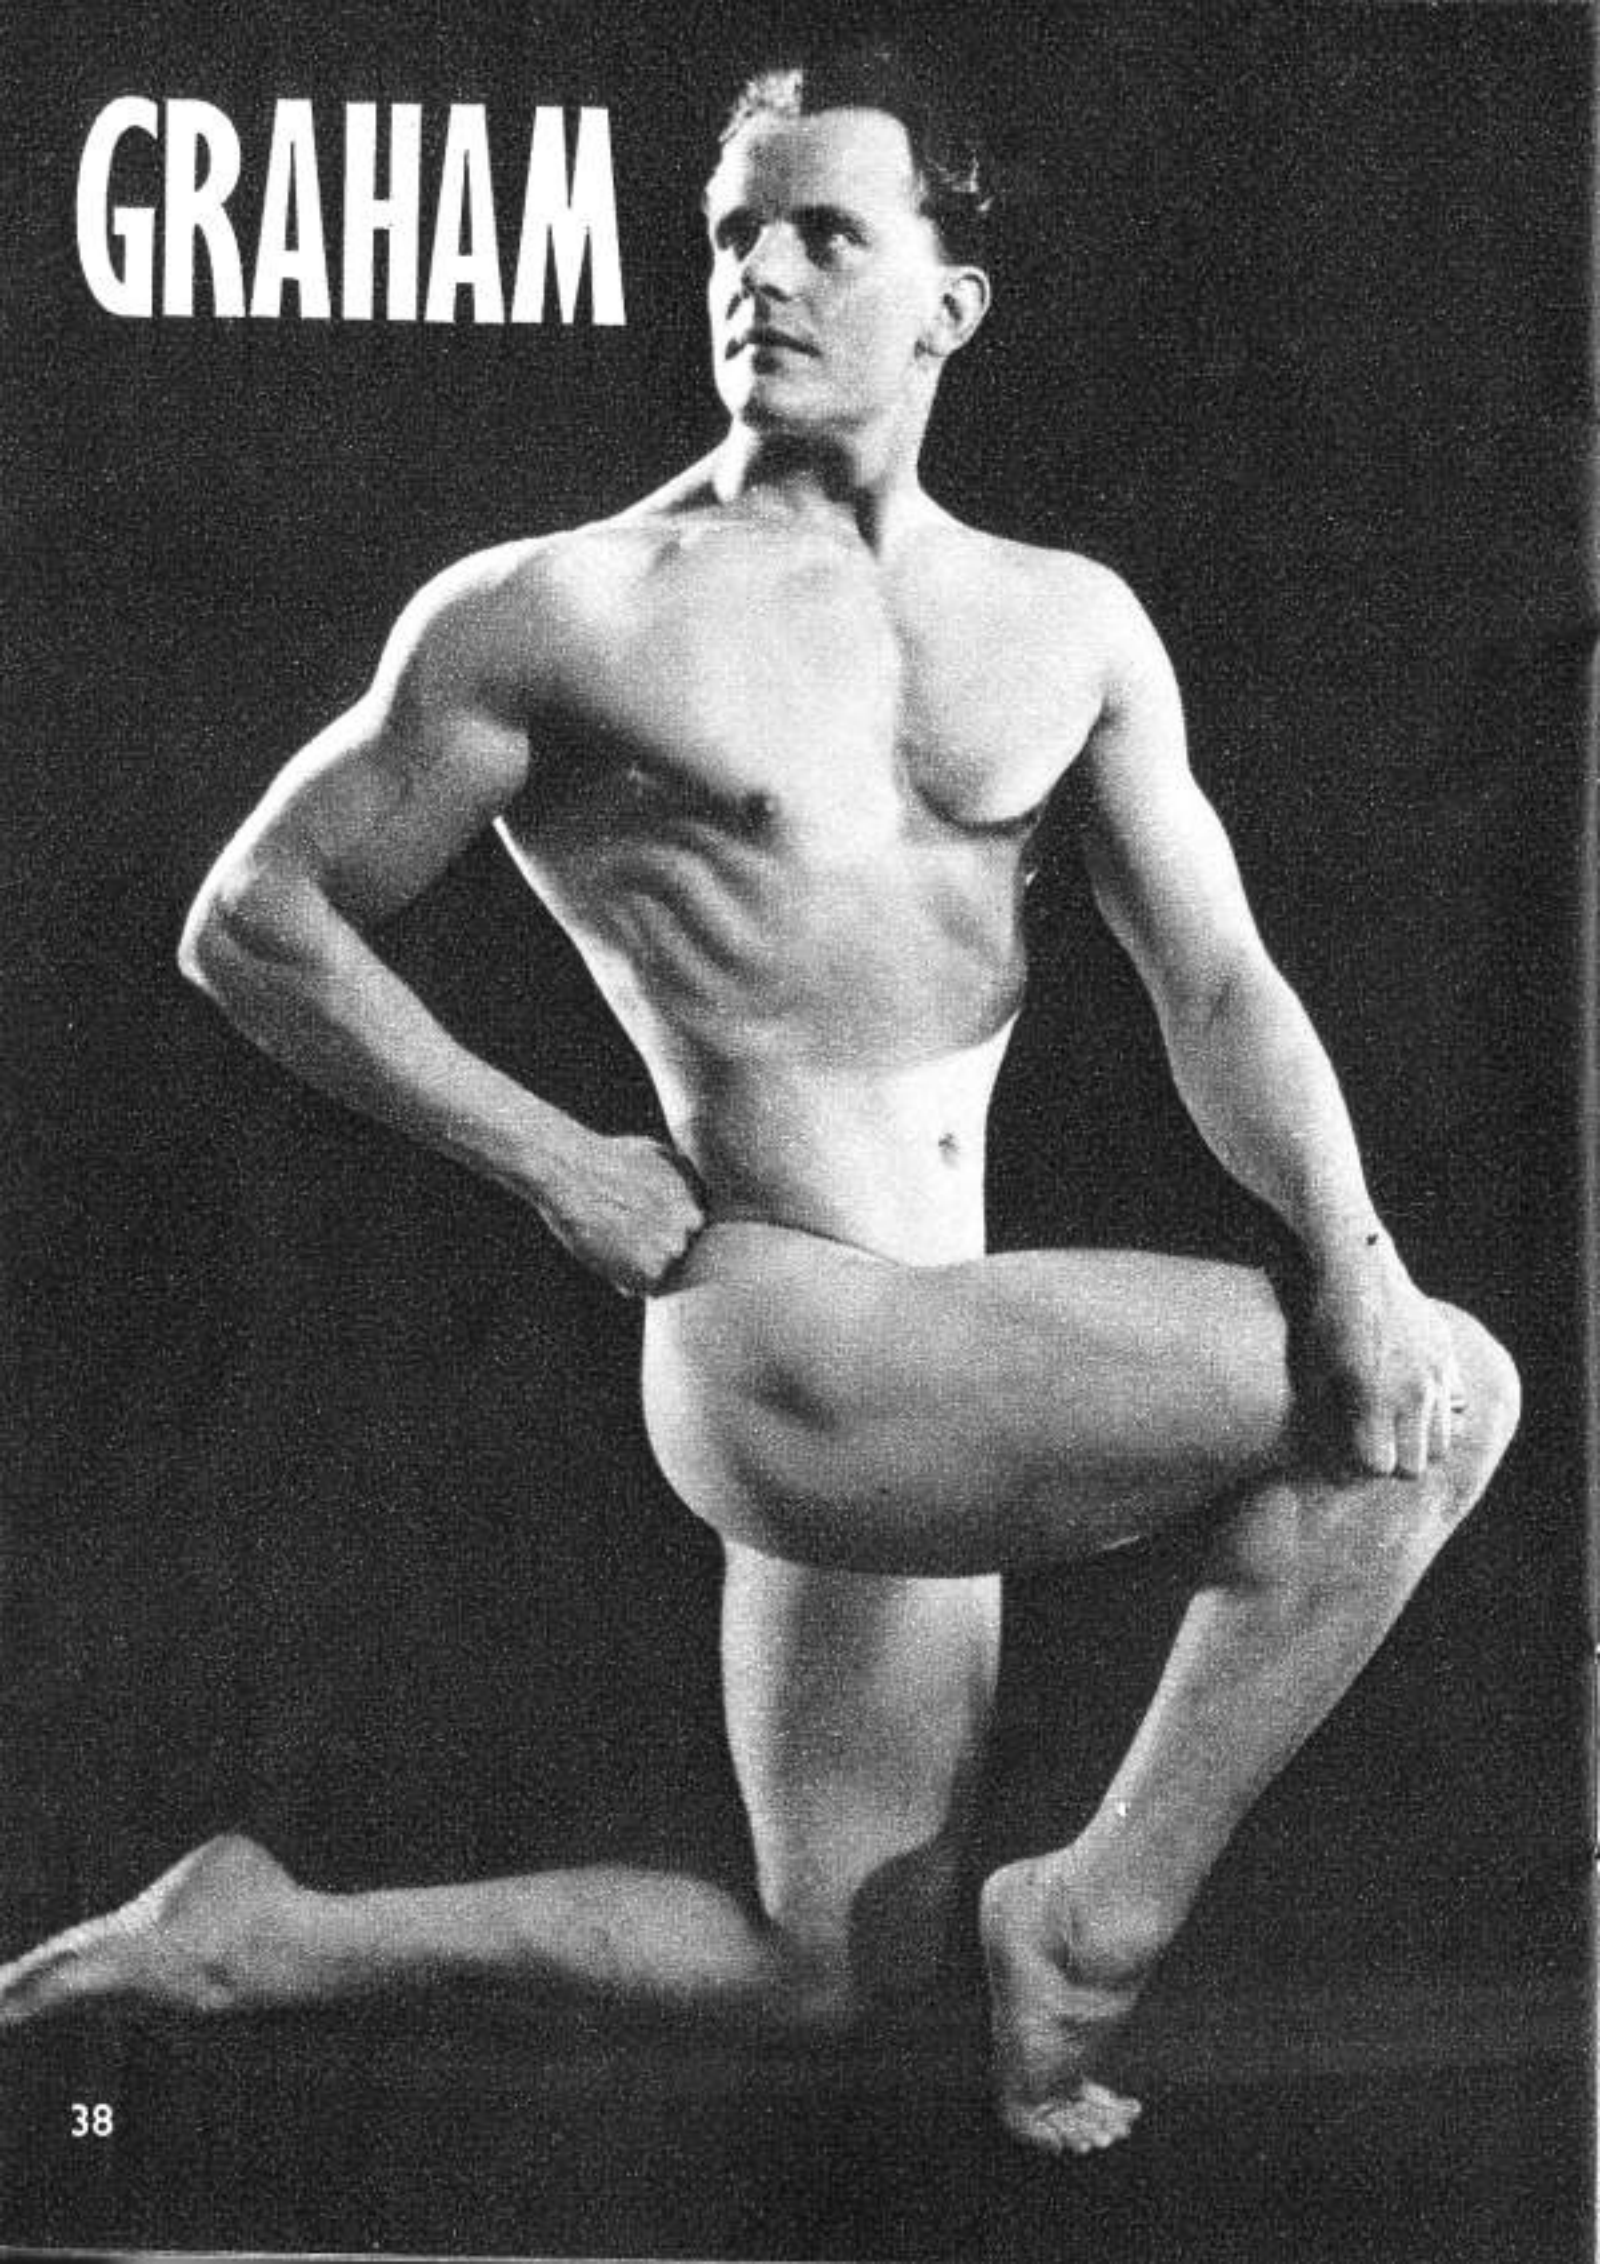
GRAHAM



Graham's Studio in London first made its name as an expert Theatre and Ballet Phorographer, and some of the skill that goes into taking a photographic record of the grace and movement of the Ballet is always obvious in the expertly composed work that Graham does in the Physique field, including, we would remind you, his masterly Physique movies.
